About the Goodyear FIA ETRC

The FIA European Truck Racing Championship (ETRC) is a leading European motorsport series. The championship began back in 1985 and has since become a major event on the calendar of every racing circuit. It attracts fans thanks to the exceptional performance of the machines and the number of weekend races. At the SLOVAKIA RING, it is presented as the OMV MaxxMotion Goodyear FIA ETRC TRUCK RACE OF SLOVAKIA (June 6-8, 2025).

We welcomed the FIA ETRC to Slovakia for the first time back in 2017. This will be the seventh return of the trucks to the Slovak circuit. Over the years, it has become one of the most important and most visited motorsport events of the year. After all, it features high-performance machines and drivers who leave nothing to chance in four intense weekend races.

Key Characteristics of the Goodyear FIA ETRC

Vehicles

The racing trucks are based on commercial models but are heavily modified for competitive purposes. They weigh approximately 5 tons and boast an output of around 1,000 horsepower.

Performance

Despite their size, these trucks can accelerate from 0 to 100 km/h in about 5 seconds. For safety reasons, their top speed is limited to 160 km/h.

Races

Each race weekend includes two qualifying sessions and four races - two on Saturday and two on Sunday. This delivers a high dose of action and entertainment for the spectators. Fans can look forward to intense battles for the title and a serious adrenaline rush.

Categories

Drivers in the Goodyear FIA ETRC are classified into Titan and Chrome categories, with separate winners declared for each category in every race and throughout the championship.

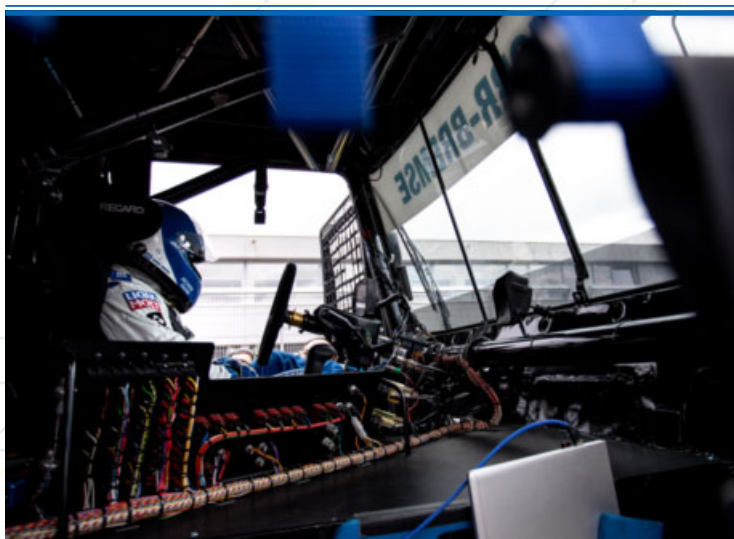

TITAN Drivers

Drivers are classified as Titan if they meet any of the following criteria:

- All Goodyear FIA ETRC champions from the past 10 years
- All drivers who finished in the top seven of the 2024 Goodyear FIA ETRC season standings
- All drivers who qualified for Q3 more than twice during the 2024 Goodyear FIA ETRC season
- The 2024 Chrome category champion
- All drivers who meet the FIA Platinum or Gold driver categorization criteria
- Any driver whose performance and achievements are deemed exceptional, even if they do not meet the above definitions
- Drivers classified as Titan cannot register in the Chrome category

CHROME Drivers

- The Chrome category includes all other drivers who do not qualify for the Titan category.

2025 Season

The start of the 2025 truck racing season belonged to the races at the Misano World Circuit Marco Simoncelli on May 17 and 18. The main star of the weekend was the reigning champion, Hungarian Norbert Kiss (Révész Racing), who delivered a dominant performance and won all four races.

Saturday's qualifying was marked by technical problems for Norbert Kiss, who, due to a steering failure on his new MAN truck, could not take part in the fight for pole position. The fastest time was therefore set by German Jochen Hahn (Team Hahn Racing), earning him pole position for the first race (Race 1). In that race, Kiss started from 16th place, but thanks to a great drive, he worked his way up to second place behind Hahn. After Hahn received a five-second penalty for a rule violation, Kiss was moved up to first place.

In Race 2, Kiss started from eighth place (the top 8 from Race 1 start in reverse order) and by the sixth lap had taken the lead, which he maintained to the finish.

On Sunday, Norbert Kiss returned to qualifying with the goal of securing pole position for the third race of the weekend. In a dramatic duel with Jochen Hahn (Team Hahn Racing), he succeeded with a time of 2:01.590, beating Hahn by 0.254 seconds.

In Race 3, after fending off an initial attack from Hahn, Kiss held the lead until the end of the race. Race 4 was marked by a collision between Antonio Albacete and Luke Garrett, which led to a red flag.

After the restart, Kiss quickly fought his way from eighth to fifth place in the first corner and then secured his fourth victory of the weekend.

The German Lausitzring circuit was the venue for the second event of the FIA European Truck Racing Championship (ETRC) season. The weekend of May 24-25 was historic not only because the championship visited this track for the first time ever, but especially for its electrifying atmosphere, thousands of fans, and excellent racing performances.

In the first Saturday qualifying session, reigning European champion Norbert Kiss (Révész Racing, MAN) clearly dominated. He confidently secured pole position and confirmed his strong form in the weekend's opening race. Despite a strong start from Jochen Hahn, Kiss didn't let him take the lead and crossed the finish line first with a margin of over two seconds.

In the second race (with a reversed grid for the top 8), however, the victory slipped away from the favorites. René Reinert, racing in front of his home crowd, took advantage of his starting position and delivered a clean, error-free drive. It was Reinert's first victory of the season and a strong message that he's a contender to watch in 2025.

Kiss didn't let up on Sunday either. In the third race of the weekend, he once again dominated - after a flawless qualifying and a great start, he maintained his lead over Hahn and Steffi Halm.

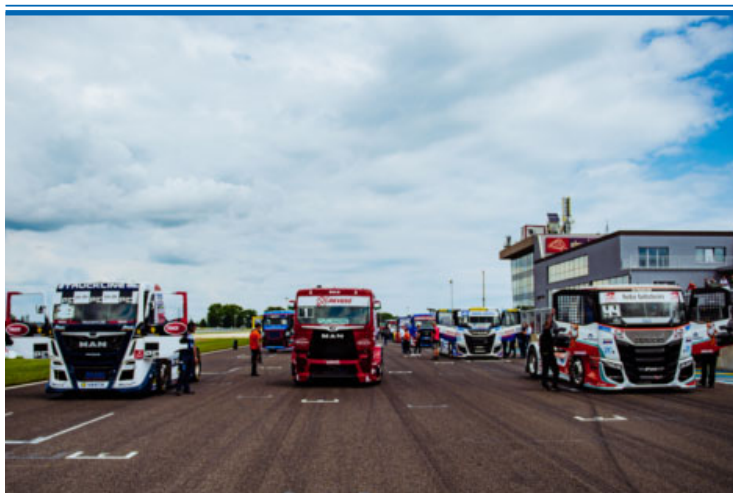

His truck performed perfectly, and Kiss claimed his second victory of the weekend.

The fourth race was dramatic. In the opening laps, a fierce battle broke out between Lenz, Albacete, and Janiec, leading to contact and minor technical issues for several drivers. In the end, it was once again Norbert Kiss who, in the final laps, climbed from third position to the front and secured his third win out of four races at Lausitzring.

Overall Standings after Lausitzring (TOP 5):

- | | |
|-------------------|------------|
| 1. Norbert Kiss | 105 points |
| 2. Jochen Hahn | 81 points |
| 3. Steffi Halmová | 65 points |
| 4. René Reinert | 56 points |
| 5. Sascha Lenz | 43 points |
